

ABOLITION OF STATE SCHOOL BOARD SOUGHT

Administration Leader Brings
State School Controversy
to a Head.

LEGISLATIVE WEEK

er Wants to Have Out-gamie Register of Deeds
to Receive Salary.

By United Press Leased Wire
dison.—A bill to abolish the Wisconsin state board of education was introduced in the lower house here today by Assemblyman William Olson.
The bill restores all authority to the board of education excepting of solders' education. This, it is said, shall be handled by the administration.

Olson seeks to settle the educational controversy, waged in the state,
he last four years.

When the state board of education created six years ago, it was the intention to abolish the department of education but it was later discovered that the amendment would be null and void and the two boards have been operating with more or less friction.

The bill aims to have each board
of education have a public board of education.

Olson said he did not want to be placed in the position of taking sides in the educational controversy. The bill proposes abolishment of the state board of education because it is easier having created by a statute and therefore not requiring a constitutional amendment and a referendum.

There has been a constant conflict
of authority between the two boards.
University regents and county superintendents of schools have been making reports to both bodies
and there has been a duplication of work in the abolition of one board would be a considerable saving financially.

Olson said his bill was not an administration measure other than it aimed in a general way to the political concentration of public administration announced by Gov. Blaine.

Erin Want To be Cut From England

By United Press Leased Wire
Dublin.—President De Valera today outlined Ireland's peace terms.
The first step he said would be for Great Britain to acknowledge Irish rights to independence. The next step would be to negotiate a suitable agreement on relations between the two countries.

Sin Fein will not insist on isolation
from the empire, he said.

De Valera's terms were announced
in his reply to a questionnaire.
His statement in regard to isolation
was accepted by his followers as a reply to the claim of British opponents that Ireland, entirely separated from Great Britain, would become a menace to the empire.

BORAH WANTS TO KNOW WHAT SHIPS ARE BEST FOR U. S.

Western Senator Charges Naval Officers Are Muzzled by Daniels.

By United Press Leased Wire.
Washington.—Senator Borah, Idaho,
leader of the disarmament supporters,
said today he will ask naval officers
before the senate naval committee to go into the question of whether submarines, aircraft or dreadnaughts are best. He also wants to inquire whether officers favoring the submarine and aircraft are prevented from public expression of their opinion. Secretary Daniels today denied that naval officers are so muzzled.

Borah expects the navy and the committee to report against a suspension.
He is already drafting a resolution for a complete investigation to cover these points:

1.—The reported British suspension of naval building for the purpose of studying new ideas in naval construction.

2.—Opinions of American and foreign experts as to the wisdom of building dreadnaughts, battle cruisers and other surface ships, as against submarines and aircraft.

3.—The manner in which navy officials receive and treat suggestions from naval officials of subordinate rank concerning innovations.

4.—The relative cost of the sixteen battleship program now under way
and an aircraft-submarine policy.

"I am glad," said Borah today, "that Secretary Daniels has ordered an entire resurvey of the problem. I hope that American naval men who have given their lives to studying these questions will be given utmost freedom to let their views be known, not only to the department but to the public. The public must pay and it is the public the navy is built to protect."

HOLD SIX YANKEES IN GERMAN PRISON

By United Press Leased Wire.
Berlin.—Six Americans are in jail
at Eberbach following their spectacular attempt to capture Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, draft dodger, former Philadelphia, now an applicant for German citizenship.

Leaders of the American party were Sergeant Karl Neaf, Maryland, and Franz Zimmer, a civilian, of Denver, Colorado.

With them were four other civilians.
All six were seized at Eberbach after they had laid hands on the draft dodger
as he waited at a railway station
with his chauffeur, Eugene Stecher,
and his German cousin, Robert Freudensberger.

The American headquarters in Berlin announced that Neaf and Zimmer were connected with the department of criminal investigation under the provost marshal's office.

JUDGE SUGGESTS ROWING
COUPLES TRADE WIVES

By United Press Leased Wire
St. Paul.—Martial entanglements before Judge G. M. Orr today brought a suggestion from the court that Edmund P. Meyer and Romey J. Marshall exchange wives.

A court room full of spectators
laughed heartily when the judge, during special term divorce proceedings, laughingly suggested this solution of their problem.

RAIL WORKERS URGED TO CUT OWN SALARIES

Railroad Executives Believe
That Is Best Way Out of Their Difficulty.

U. S. CONTROL IS BLAMED

Impossible for Railroads to Make Good Unless Wages
Are Reduced.

By United Press Leased Wire
Chicago.—Two million railroad employees should voluntarily cut their wages, in the opinion of railroad executives meeting here today to discuss the labor and wage situation.

W. D. Besler, president of the New Jersey Central railroad and a member of the labor commission of the Association of Railway Executives, urged the employees to take this action to bring the nation out of the rail triangle.

He said the view was held by many other railroad executives.

Besler, as he was going into the meeting of railroad executives, said:
"An arbitrary cut in wages for our employees would hurt. They should get together and tell the management
they are willing to accept a little loss."

William Lee, president of the railway trainmen, is on record as saying it is not high wages that employees want but purchasing power. The dollar has a greater purchasing power
today.

No recommendations for drastic slashes in wages will come out of the conference if Besler's opinions are followed out.

"It's mighty poor business to under-pay labor," he said.

"If fair wages are paid, we get the cream of the labor market; if not, other industries get it. It takes the best employees to run successfully."

Besler blamed former government control and present supervision for the plight of the roads.

"After the government spent nine billion dollars to run the roads they were turned back in a run down condition," he said.

"We also found wages fixed as the law of the land, irrespective of economic conditions."

Besler said the government now owes the roads upwards of $500,000, 000 as a guarantee. This sum has been certified by the interstate commerce commission but is still held up, he said. This leaves the roads unable to pay their obligations, he said.

The railroad board, the supreme court of railroad capital and labor—
will hold a public hearing on the petition before reaching a decision.

Not until the railroad problem is settled amicably will industrial readjustment be accomplished, authorities generally admit.

E. T. Whittier, spokesman for the railroads before the labor board, said today the only way for the roads to earn the 6 per cent guaranteed stockholders under the government agreement is to reduce wages.

"The roads are all losing money,"
he said.

"Safety of passengers is impaired
because of reduction in forces necessary to curtail expenses. All other expenses have been reduced. Therefore the only way out is to cut wages."

Whittier favors the orderly abolition of the government control and labor-union control and the road management.
"This problem will not be settled before the roads are unshackled as they were before the Adamson act became effective, Dec. 31, 1917," he said.

COX HOPEFUL OF DEMOCRATIC W'N FOUR YEARS HENCE

Defeated Candidate Will Spend Next Few Months in Tour of Europe.

BY DAVID LAWRENCE.
(Copyright, 1921.)

Washington.—James M. Cox of Ohio, editor of the Dayton News and Springfield News—not defeated candidate for the presidency or politician—dropped in at the White House to get some ideas from President Wilson on the European situation which he plans a thorough study lasting perhaps a year.

Mr. Cox feels that Europe contains the answer to economic improvement
in America and that for the next generation, at least, an intimate knowledge of European conditions is essential to an editor and a business man.

The president and Mr. Cox talked for nearly an hour. Mr. Cox gave his visitor various suggestions based upon his own study of European affairs and particularly recommended some trustworthy sources of information. Much of the conversation turned upon the future of Russia where it is Mr. Cox's hope that he can make an extensive study and investigation.

The former governor wants it understood that the mission is entirely private and he hopes that he will be able to come to the banquet and dinner which always crowd the calendar of American statesmen who visit the White house.

Food Dollar Worth More Now Than Six Months Ago

By United Press Leased Wire
Washington, D. C.—Your dollar is getting to be worth more—every day
your food dollar—according to official figures of the labor department.

The clothing dollar, the traveling dollar, the amusement dollar and other dollars have been getting more valuable too, but the food dollar leads the others with an advance of 25 per cent since June.

The department figures show the food dollar is worth exactly 54.1 cents
as compared with 1913. Turning it around, you pay now only $1.78 for the food which in 1913 cost $1.41. Along last June it took $2.19 to buy that amount of food. The dollar then was worth only 45.7 cents as compared with 1913.

Then there are different kinds of food dollars. The sirloin steak dollar is now approximately 54 cents
compared with the 1913 sirloin steak dollar. In July it was worth only 52 cents.

The history of some of the other varieties of food dollars in the last five and six months follows.

TARIFF FIGHT IS CENTERING AROUND SUGAR

Even Friends of New Tariff Admit $160,000 Extra Sugar Bill.

HELPS SOUTHERN GROWERS

Senator Harrison Continues His Filibuster Against Measure.

By United Press Leased Wire
Washington.—The "battle of sugar" continued today in the senate on the twelfth day of the Harrison filibuster
against the emergency tariff bill.

The fight on the measure centers on its provisions putting a tariff on sugar.

These provisions, senators opposing them, say this means 16 to 20
cent sugar for consumers.

The proponents of the bill insist that this is absurd and promise the price won't go above eleven or twelve cents and then only for a short time.

They concede that in a year the proposed tariff would cost the American public $160,000,000. Foes of the bill say it would be nearer half a billion dollars.

The sugar tariff, which is to apply
only until raw sugar goes to 8 cents
a pound and refined to ten cents wholesale, was put in the bill by the senate finance committee on urging of Senators Gay and Ransdell, Louisiana. They say Louisiana sugar planters lost heavily and say the tariff is intended to let them recover
their losses.

Western senators are opposed to the sugar tariff but say it is necessary to include it to pass the bill. They claim Michigan and Utah senators want it too. Smoot and King of Utah and Townsend of Michigan say they won't change their views on the bill
as a whole no matter what happens to the sugar provision.

Senator Harrison, Mississippi, had much filibustering material on hand today. Penrose and McCumber, in charge of the bill, say they'd continue to let Harrison talk for the time being. No disposition to apply cloture
exists, despite reports to the contrary.

NEED $30,000 MORE FOR GAME WARDENS

By United Press Leased Wire
Madison.—The conservation commission served notice today that unless an emergency appropriation of $30, 000 was forthcoming at once, the commissioners would begin laying off wardens until the department expenses were in keeping with the balance in the treasury.

There are sixty-two wardens drawing an average of $131 per month in salaries but not more than one half of these will survive unless more money is made available.

The commissioners made it clear that they were only asking for money
the department had already earned and paid into the general treasury—
in fact the state is $150,000 to the red in the difference between appropriations and the fees and collections turned into the treasury by the department.

The commission was forced to increase salaries of wardens materially and found the appropriation of $250, 000 inadequate.

Sid Unhappy Without His Best Friends

By United Press Leased Wire
Williamson, W. Va.—"Smiling" Sid
Hatfield has become a misnomer.
A frown now replaces the smile
which had been famous the state over.
Separation from his two best friends
—double action .44 and .45 calibre
guns—is responsible.

Under orders of the judge, Hatfield
and nineteen other defendants charged with murder in connection with the killing of seven Baldwin-Felts detectives at Matewan more than nine months ago, must submit to search before entering the court room. Hatfield never had been known to be unarmed.

The cause of Hatfield's frown was the ruling of Judge R. D. Bailey, barring members of the United Mine workers of America as jurors in the trial. The state raised an objection which brought about this ruling,
when Julius Perry, striking miner, was called as a venuer man. He was excused.

MIDNIGHT TRIPS TO CEMETERY ARE PUZZLING MADISON

New Light Is Thrown on Capital's "Orange Diamond Murder Mystery."

(Special to Post-Crescent)
Madison.—Mysterious trips by two men under suspicion in the "orange diamond murder mystery" to the cemetery where the body of Richard S. Lawrence was buried, early last spring, were sensational disclosures in the case today.

According to evidence in the possession of District Attorney T. G.
Lewis, these two men made two trips
after midnight to the lonely Forest
Hill cemetery.

Drivers of two taxicabs told Lewis concerning the trips. They were made, they said, some time before the body of Lawrence was exhumed. The body was exhumed when the widow of the aged miser charged murder and theft of his wealth, estimated at $300,000.

The taxicab drivers said both men were in working clothes. It would probably be about this time that the alleged substitution of bodies was made.

A piece of the scalp of the man who was killed by the train may be the means of settling definitely all discussion as to whether there were two bodies. The flesh was taken from the body of the mutilated "stranger" and has been preserved in a laboratory here for almost three years. When the body now in Forest Hill cemetery is exhumed this piece of scalp will be compared with the body.

FORD PLANT CALLING BACK ITS EMPLOYEES

By United Press Leased Wire
Detroit, Mich.—The Ford Motor company's Highland Park plant has been reopened.

Many heads of departments, steam fitters, foremen and millwrights were called back to work. By Monday it is said the big plant will be operating at about 25 per cent capacity. Three days a week will be the working schedule at present.

The plant has been closed for more than a month.

The men who were called back to work today will get the plant into shape for the resumption of production. The first jobs in the reopening are being given to picked men who are notified by mail. Gradual expansion will bring thousands back to work.

LEADS SKEPTICAL POLICE TO BODY OF MAN HE KILLED

By United Press Leased Wire
Minot, N. D.—Applesack, codefendant in the "Oklahoma Jack" case,
officials agreed today.

When "Oklahoma Jack" Collier,
miner, walked four miles to Kenmare
to tell authorities he had shot a man,
they wouldn't believe him.

Upon Collier's insistence, however,
they found the body of John Roynolds, another miner, near Collier's shack with four bullet wounds in his body.

Demand Ransom For Release Of Los Angeles Woman

Police Believe They Are on Trail
of Man Who Abducted
Mrs. Witherell.

REVENGE MAY BE MOTIVE

Relatives of Missing Girl Offer
$2,000 Reward for Information.

By United Press Leased Wire.
Los Angeles.—O. S. Witherell, president of the Financial Loan and Investment company, whose young wife, Glady, vanished mysteriously Tuesday night from their Hollywood bungal-ow, has received a note assuring him of Mrs. Witherell's safety, according to a well founded rumor in circulation
today.

The report was given credence later when relatives and detectives working on the case went into secret conference, excluding newspapermen, who previously had been informed of every move.

Asked about the receipt of such a note, Detective Harris said if it had been, it would be obviously impossible
to make the fact public.

"We must proceed carefully or endanger her life—if she is held by desperate criminals, as I believe she is,"
he added.

Harris admitted he believes Mrs.
Witherell will soon be restored to her husband and baby. He said the means by which this is expected to be accomplished would be announced probably today or tomorrow.

Los Angeles.—With a businessman under surveillance, police and private detectives investigating the mysterious abduction of Mrs. Glady Witherell, predicted the arrest today of a man suspected of having lured the young wife from her home.

John C. Kratz, wealthy former Detroit shoe manufacturer, added his personal offer of $1,000 for information as to the whereabouts of his daughter. This brought the rewards offered to $2,000.

The businessman whose movements are being closely watched, is said to have once had a disagreement with Mrs. Witherell's husband. It was considered she may have been kidnapped with revenge as the motive.

A gray-haired man whose description tallies with that of the tall stranger who was seen leaving the Witherell home in Hollywood with Mrs. Witherell, appeared at the office of Fred Erving, Witherell's business partner. He announced he had information regarding the case. Erving seized a telephone and put in a call for the police. The gray-haired man became alarmed and the Erving's action
left the office, Erving said.

Mr. Kratz, father of the missing girl, has consulted a medium in an effort to clear up the mystery of her disappearance. He was told only that he would hear from his daughter soon.

Go to Ransom Note
The fact that soon afterwards a note was received by her husband,
O. S. Witherell, president of an investment company, is believed to have influenced Kratz to continue his quest through the psychic.

The note was shovled under the door of Mrs. Witherell's home. Written on a typewriter and unsigned, it read:

"Mr. Witherell—Your wife is safe.
Do not worry. Have $50,000 cash ready and you will hear from me soon. Don't notify the police or detectives or all will be lost."

While the police will not admit the authenticity of the note, they have abandoned the theory that she was slain or kidnapped for revenge and believe she is really held for ransom.
At the same time they point out that the note may well have been written by someone who had nothing to do with her disappearance yet hoped to capitalize the mystery by posing as her kidnapper and exacting a ransom.

Went With Old Man
The husband and his father, A. J.
Witherell, a retired banker, were expected to increase their reward of $500 for information leading to the return of Mrs. Witherell. It was also believed that additional rewards
would be offered by the city council and the county board of supervisors.

Mrs. Elmer Warden, a neighbor, told the police of how Mrs. Witherell left her home in company with a stranger. She said a gray-haired man came to her home and asked for Mrs.
Witherell. She directed him next door. A few minutes later Mrs.
Witherell asked Miss Warden to care for her 18 months old baby. Jack, explained she had been informed that her husband had been injured in an automobile accident.

Monday, Jan. 23. The meeting will be in the nature of a sectional institute and the program will be the same as that given at Kaukauna in December. Two more dates will be announced in the first series, one at Hortonville and one at Bear Creek early in February.

NEED MORE CASH FOR OCEANWAY BATTLE

Opposition in the East Has Been Well Financed, Speaker Says.

Superior—Charles P. Craig, executive director of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Tidewater association, addressed the Civic and Commerce association at a special noon luncheon. He was optimistic of the outcome of the fight for the sea cut, but indicated that all the states interested would have to continue to fight to overcome obstacles which interests in New York are trying to raise. He said that the opposition has been beaten at every turn of the game and, knowing that their arguments are without foundation, they will work harder than ever now, not to dig up new arguments, but to put obstacles in the way to delay this great economic project.

"The funds of the Great Lakes-Tidewater association are exhausted," Mr. Craig said. "In order to inaugurate the most vigorous campaign ever attempted to secure congressional action by March, 1923, a realization of the deep waterway project in five years, we must have funds from the sixteen states that comprise the association. New Yorkers have vast means at their command to fight us." From all over the country favorable reports are coming. Mr. Craig pointed out. An endorsement from the state chamber of commerce and a refusal of the chamber of commerce of the city of Philadelphia to side against the waterway were cited by Mr. Craig as the most encouraging.

"Certain facts are now substantiated regarding the waterway," Mr. Craig said. "One is that it would take but fourteen days for a boat traveling an average of ten and a half knots to travel from the head of the lakes to Liverpool. That is 500 miles shorter by the new proposed route."

TRYING TO LIVE WITHOUT MONEY

Wife of Heir to Millions Is Not Sure His Scheme Will Work Out.

(Special to Post-Crescent)
New York—The Garland million is increasing at compound interest while Charles Garland still declines to accept it and seeks a way to live without money.

The million is in the capable custody of Henry D. Tudor, the Garland trustee.

Garland continues to live with his wife and child on his mother's farm at Buzzards Bay, Mass.

"We are holding the money in abeyance," Tudor says, "hoping something will alter Mr. Garland's views and make him accept it. But he is just as firm in his refusal as he was last winter when he became of age."

Legal Question

"Does the law, compelling a man to support his wife and family, apply in a case like that of Mr. Garland, who has stated he is living on his mother's bounty?" Tudor was asked. "I think this phase of the law presumes that a man is earning money," Tudor replied. "If he does not earn it, the law cannot compel a man to pass an inheritance to his family."

"By way of illustration, if Mrs. Garland should demand support it might be that complications would arise and Garland would either have to earn money or get it somehow. However, we have not gone into that because Mrs. Garland has not raised the question."

Garland's Resolution

Garland says he is more than ever determined to reject the million.

"Nothing has altered my view that money and what people will do for money is the root of all present day evils," he says. "I have still not worked out a plan of action—a code of life. My whole problem just now is to determine how best to present a practical plan of living, with money eliminated."

"Is your wife still of your opinion?"

"Yes. But she is not as fully convinced of its practicality as I am."

Garland is expounding his theories in speeches before clubs.

OTHER CITIES LIKE NEW TRAFFIC TOWER

New York—Other large cities are planning to follow New York's example in regulating traffic from police towers.

So successful have New York's five experimental towers prove that they are to be replaced with permanent structures, ornate in character.

Five towers are in operation on Fifth avenue, at Thirty-fourth, Thirty-seventh, Forty-second, Fiftyth and Fifty-seventh streets.

They control traffic for a distance of two miles.

Dr. John A. Harris, special police commissioner, erected them at his own expense.

Each tower is 25 feet high.

The policeman in the middle tower, at Forty-second street is the keyman, flashing the signals which are relayed by the other towers.

These signals are green, yellow and red lights.

Green: North and south traffic moves.

Yellow: East and west traffic moves.

Red: Stop! Signals change.

"Vehicle drivers and pedestrians are quickly educated to watch the towers," says Dr. Harris. "A few months' operation shows it's absolutely the best plan of speeding up traffic and safeguarding lives."

MILLER SURE HIS YANKS ARE COMERS

New York and Cleveland Are Favorites, Yankee Leader Declares.

By United Press Leased Wire

New York—The New York Yankees will fight it out with the world champion Cleveland Indians for the American league title this year, in the opinion of Miller Huggins.

"The team we will have to beat for the championship this year is Cleveland," the diminutive manager told the United Press today.

"I look for Tris Speaker to have as strong an outfit as he had last season, but I believe we will be much stronger. We will have a much better balanced club, our pitching will be infinitely improved, our youngsters will be more seasoned, we will show a faster speed on the bases and I believe we were greatly strengthened as a result of the trade with Boston."

"And—there is no reason why Babe Ruth shouldn't have the greatest year he has yet had."

BABE RUTH WILL BE PLAYED IN INFIELD

Fans Wonder What Will Happen to Bambino's Hitting Reputation.

By Henry L. Farrell

New York—With the prospect becoming more definite for Babe Ruth to appear in the role of a first baseman for the Yankees this year, fans are beginning to wonder what effect, if any, the switch from the outfield will have upon the home run champion's slugging ability.

It has been a supposition for years that in the garden a player has less defensive worries than in any other position and consequently can concentrate more on his batting. This would appear to be born out by the fact that most of the batting champions of recent times have been outfielders. But it must be remembered that outfielders are selected for their offensive ability, while in the other positions player's defense is stressed.

As a consequence, a man who makes good in the outer line of defense just as naturally must be a whale of a clubber to hold his job.

As regards the ability of a first baseman in particular to grab off a batting title as one has only to go back as far as last year to find George Sizer, of the Browns, as the leading club swinger of the American league. And Sizer is also regarded as one of the best defensive players of his position.

The present plans of Miller Huggins are understood to contemplate trading of Willie Pipp and the acquisition of "Baby Doll" Jacobson, St. Louis center fielder. If these deals are accomplished he would play Jacobson, Bobby Roth and Bob Meusel in the outfield and use Ruth on first.

OUR POVERTY-STRICKEN SCHOOLS

At the annual convention of county assessors one of the speakers gave it as his opinion that the public schools of Wisconsin were not receiving sufficient income from taxation for their proper care and development. He advocated still larger taxes to the end that the schools might be dealt with more liberally. "What is seven-tenths of one mill," he said, "for common schools, what is three-fourths of a mill for the University and one-sixth of a mill for normal schools in a total levy of 35 mills?" To emphasize his point that the schools were inadequately financed the speaker referred to the nation's tobacco, chewing gum and movie bills, totalling something like a billion dollars annually, and a liquor bill which formerly exceeded that amount. If we further consider the fact that 93 per cent of federal revenues go for wars, past and present and only seven per cent for education, administration and all other governmental purposes we have a still more striking picture of the relative neglect of public schools.

We have only to look about us for evidences of this neglect. We have some good school houses in every city, but we also have many shabby, ancient, insanitary, poorly ventilated buildings, meanly equipped and some of them positively disreputable. We see children crowded in dilapidated structures amid surroundings that are anything but conducive to intellectual effort and training. We see many practically excluded from educational opportunity by lack of facilities. We see the need of additional high school facilities, of more and better teachers, of playgrounds and other health-creating agencies, of rural high schools, of more modern equipment. We see the schools skimped to the last penny and dollars aplenty for purposes not one-quarter so important.

The American educational system has been grossly impaired by the demands and excesses of politics, by the extravagances of congress and of legislatures, by the enormous appropriations which go for war. We have gone on year after year satisfying the insatiable appetite of politicians for plums and fence-building material, we have tolerated waste and inefficiency in the nation, state and municipality, all at the expense of the public schools and the children of America.

Our schools ought to be the equal of any public buildings we possess. They ought to be the finest of our public institutions. They ought to serve all our children equally, adequately and well. The schools should be the first thing to which we point with pride as evidence of our civic worth and progressiveness. Thousands of them are veritable barns. Thousands are needed that do not exist. The assessor who asks for higher taxes for the schools is right. The levy for education should be made sufficient to provide high-class schools, modern school houses, thoroughly trained and capable teachers. This tax should come near the top, if not at the top. Good roads and other needed public works should come next. If that made taxes high well and good, it would be for a worthy purpose, society and the nation would be getting value received. Politics could take what was left, or better still go without. How long are we going to go on reversing the order, paying the tribute first to politics and letting the schools shift for themselves in poverty and neglect?

CLEAN BILL OF HEALTH FOR SCHWAB

We have heard much since the war about graft and corruption in connection with war contracts. A deal of the scandal has attached to the shipping operations of the government. It is refreshing, therefore, to find that the cloud cast upon at least one reputable concern of the country, the Bethlehem Steel company and its head, Charles M. Schwab, has been dissipated and both given a clean bill of health by the congressional investigating committee.

Following his recital of the business transactions of the Bethlehem Steel company with the government, Rep. Foster said: "I want to thank you, Mr. Schwab, for the unsurpassable and unselfish services you rendered the government." It was almost a sensational termination of the graft innuendo registered against Mr. Schwab, who in defending his reputation exhibited deep feeling and finally came to tears.

The incident serves to warn us against prejudice where great corporations are concerned. There was some profiteering and some graft in getting ready for war and in prosecuting it, but the tremendous contribution of American industry and business in making the American war machine invincible and the wonder of the world was in the main the work of men of integrity, unselfishness and high patriotism. The character of the most of the work done was in itself a guarantee of honesty, loyalty and honorable purpose. A nation of grafters could never have prosecuted and won the world war. Let us never forget this in assessing our criticisms.

BE FAIR WITH GERMANY

The allied supreme council, now in session in Paris, is dealing with vital as well as critical phases of the peace of Europe. It has among other questions touching the practical application of the Versailles treaty to decide two matters of the utmost importance, one that of German disarmament and the other that of reparations.

France up to this time has taken an extreme position on both issues. It has insisted upon further measures for crippling the military resources of Germany and it has opposed compliance with the provision of the treaty which requires the fixing of total reparations by May 1 next. In this stand France is alone.

The latest proposal, said to have the approval of Premier Briand, rejects totalization of reparations at this time and in fact postpones it indefinitely beyond the limit fixed by the treaty. The plan would oblige Berlin to pay an annuity of three billion gold marks for the next five years, in the course of which she would be informed what she is to pay eventually.

The most definite scheme for German indemnities yet drawn was that drafted at Boulogne last July. This provided for a payment of three billion gold marks annually for five years, six billion annually for the next five years, and seven billion annually for the next thirty-two years, a total of 269,000,000,000 marks in forty-two years, of which France would get 55 per cent.

Germany, while leaving open the amount of the indemnity, insists that it be fixed between now and May 1 in compliance with the treaty and in this demand she is morally supported by Great Britain and Belgium. While recognizing the fact that no indemnity which could be fixed would repay the claims that might justly be brought against Germany, as well as the further fact that five years may disclose Germany's ability to pay more than her resources would indicate at this time, nevertheless there are considerations which question the wisdom or propriety of exacting the last pound of flesh. There are more important things at stake in this international settlement than dollars, and one of these is the execution of the treaty in a spirit which will promote the future peace and good will of Europe.

The American viewpoint naturally excludes that intimate knowledge of France's peculiar problem which entitles it to weight, but the British understand it and give it a place in their judgment, for in the last analysis it concerns them along with France. When, therefore, Great Britain counsels moderation in the demands for disarmament as well as in the claims for reparation we may safely assume that it is without prejudice and that it has a true regard for French interests. Germany's insistence that she be permitted to know the worst now seems as reasonable and equitable to America as it does to Great Britain, and it is to be hoped the supreme council will find a solution of its problems in keeping with the more judicial British spirit. If we are to have settled and enduring peace Germany must have the opportunity to pay her debt honorably and resume her place among the self-respecting nations of the world.

THE NERVE OF THE STOMACH

The famous twelve pairs of nerves which emerge directly from the brain supply the organs of special sense; facial expression, breathing and digestion. The tenth pair, called the Pneumogastric (lung-stomach) nerves or Vagus (wandering) nerves, control the movements of the stomach and the secretion of the gastric juice. These Vagus nerves are well named wandering nerves, for they wander far and wide. I can recall no other other pair of nerves whose geography, functions, and pathology give the unfortunate medical student so much trouble as these exceedingly wayward Vagus nerves do. After a most complicated origin or birth in the well-known medulla oblongata, the vagus nerves emerge from the skull through the jugular openings, and having participated in the formation of some nerve ganglions or little brains there they pass on down through the neck one on each side, along with the carotid artery and the internal jugular vein—deeply placed in the neck for protection—to the root of the neck in the region of the collar bones. Thence they begin wandering in real earnest to the student's eternal regret. The right one runs down alongside of the windpipe to the back part of the root of the lung, thence along the back of the gullet to the rear surface of the stomach. The left descends behind the root of the left lung, thence down the front of the gullet to the front wall of the stomach.

Simple enough, isn't it? But go easy. The Vagus nerves not only wander aimlessly about the body but also give off important branches in the most lavish way.

A branch supplies the meningeal membrane of the base of the brain. Another supplies the skin on the back of the outer ear canal. Another controls the movements of the swallowing muscles. Another gives sensation to the larynx or voice box. Another supplies sensation to the lining of the throat and the back of the tongue. Several branches go to the heart, and several more to the lungs.

Through the meanderings of the Vagus nerves some commonly confusing symptoms are explained. A harsh brassy cough, which arouses the patient's suspicions of his bronchial tubes and lungs, may be caused by trifling irritation of the little Vagus branch in the back wall of the ear canal by hardened wax or other irritant. Pain in the base or back of the skull is often dependent on a dry frequent cough, not from pressure on the windpipe but from pressure on one of the Vagus branches; irritation of the same branch sometimes causes a deep hoarse voice, and paralysis of the same branch (sometimes following diphtheria) renders the lining of the larynx insensitive so that foreign bodies or food will "go down the wrong way."

Irritation of the Pneumogastric nerves by tobacco, to which they seem particularly vulnerable, accounts for, first, "heartburn" and stomach trouble, then cough, and finally actual derangement of the heart action.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Early Walks

Is a walk before breakfast, between 6 and 7 a. m., good for a person in the winter (E. K.)
ANSWER—Fine. That is, theoretically I think it would be fine. As for myself, I am usually too busy at that hour to test the matter personally.

The Incurable Teacher

My little girl aged ten was decidedly left-handed when she started in school, but the teacher persisted until she made her use the right hand for writing. In a short time I noticed a change in her speech, not stammering or stuttering exactly, but she seemed to constantly forget in the middle of a sentence what she had started to say, and a new teacher remarked that the child seemed dull and listless. I told the teacher I feared it might be from the forced change to right-handedness, but she said there was nothing in that. (Mrs. A. P.)

ANSWER—A teacher has no excuse whatever for forcing a change from natural left-handedness to artificial right-handedness and a parent is exceedingly negligent in permitting any such thing. Stuttering or other speech defect is a common result of the forced change. Re-development or training of the left hand for writing and other fine work has proved curative in many cases. Besides, it is a great boon to a child to be able to use either hand for skilled work.

The Rev. H. P. Haylett was in Milwaukee on business. Assemblyman Hubert Wolf of Greenville was visiting friends at Fond du Lac.

James Hinton was called to Canada by the critical illness of his father.

George Hitchcock returned from a several weeks' business trip in the east.

Arthur Jensen of Temple, Texas, was visiting Appleton relatives and friends after several years' absence.

Miss Rose Vanderheiden entertained several friends in honor of her birthday anniversary.

While playing football at Third ward school building, Elmer Johnston got mixed up in a scuffle and was badly bruised about the head. He was unconscious when taken home.

Several Lawrence university students were interesting themselves in the organization of a band.

Prof. Colahan, who was here the previous year teaching French and German by the natural method was at Neenah, where his classes were made up principally of society people.

J. Jacoby moved his cigar manufacturing plant to Stark & Tesch's new block opposite the Elbert hotel.

The Republican Citizens' club, which was to occupy the rooms over L. H. Finck's brother's shop, corner of College avenue and Morrison street, was to organize the following Saturday evening.

The business directory published daily consisted of A. M. Maeder, teacher of violin; C. C. Wayland, produce commissioner; Lew Cole, sign painter; Charles E. Spicer, pianist; T. J. Griffin, restaurant; Ryan & Carroll, grocers; Western Screen Plate Works; and Adam Dengel & Son.

CHILDREN SELL $20,000 WORTH OLD PAPER

During the school year of 1919-1920 the public school children of St. Louis, Mo., collected and sold $20,675 worth of waste paper. Of this amount $2,367 went for operating expenses, which made the net profit of $17,308.

This movement started in April, 1918, when the 100,000 pupils in the 135 schools of St. Louis were asked to bring old newspapers and magazines to school to be sold for the benefit of the Teachers' Benevolent Association.

The children made a great game of the business and there is much rivalry between schools and grades over which will have the biggest showing in tonnage of old newspapers and magazines. For the children literally bring waste paper to school by the ton.

Some Immigrant Facts.

By Frederic J. Haskin

Washington, D. C.—Anywhere from ten million to twenty-five million people according to various estimates, are literally standing in line in Europe waiting for a chance to come to America.

Haskin

of his facts are therefore here set forth.

In Danzig he says that people are standing in line by thousands to get on the boats, and that they are camped all about the port of embarkation, waiting their turns. The steamship companies report that they are offered 10 times as much business as they can handle. Most of these immigrants have sold everything they possessed in order to raise enough money to be admitted to the country. They pay from $110 to $160 for a steerage passage to the United States, which is more than a first class passage cost a few years ago. The immigrant carrying business is said to be very remunerative to the steamship companies.

Many of the immigrants tell of being robbed at the port of embarkation. They are forced to check all of their personal belongings while taking a bath, and afterward they say they are unable to recover them, the checks not being honored. There are also tales of women and girls being dragged out of line and robbed.

The result is that when the immigrant arrives in the United States he does not have sufficient money to be admitted to the country, and the law provides that he cannot be admitted if he is likely to become a public charge. On one ship carrying perhaps a thousand immigrants there were several hundred that had less than one dollar each in money. Many of them, from regions infested with typhus, wear clothes so filthy that these clothes will not stand the disinfecting process through which they must be put.

Congestion at Ellis Island

Most of these destitute immigrants claim that they expect money here from friends, relatives or societies, and most of them are, in the course of time, rescued by some of their compatriots in this country. But meantime they must be cared for at Ellis Island. The island has no accommodations for such a swarm of people. They are compelled to sleep on the floors, and many of them have to sleep without blankets. There are no adequate toilet facilities or facilities of any other kind.

Furthermore, these almost destitute people land in a country the language of which they cannot speak, and in a city which is already full of unemployed persons, and which has bread lines. There is practically no machinery for placing these people in jobs. Mr. Wallis reported several letters that he had had from the West asking for immigrant labor at good wages. But he has no authority to act as an employment agency. He believes that the Labor Department is now taking some steps to distribute these immigrant laborers where they are needed, but does not know what funds they have for the purpose. As a matter of fact, they have practically none. The United States Employment Service, since the Armistice, has been reduced to a skeleton organization.

Mr. Wallis does not believe that the situation is to be relieved by the passage of a law like the Johnson bill prohibiting all immigration, with certain exceptions, such as the blood relatives of those already here, for a year. He believes that the exceptions, and the funds which would naturally grow out of them, would more than fill the boats,—that we would get about the same amount of immigration, but that it would consist mostly of women, children, and other dependents. He seems to believe that either all immigration should be stopped, without exceptions, until legislation regulating immigration in a scientific way can be passed; or else immigration should be allowed to run along as it is until such final legislation can be passed.

Boats Limit Immigration

Mr. Wallis points out the important fact that the amount of immigration which we can receive is limited by the number of persons which the ships can carry. He estimates that the ships now in use can carry a million steerage passengers a year and perhaps three hundred thousand in the first and second cabins. It is further brought out in the hearings that 25 to 30 per cent of the trans-Atlantic passenger traffic is non-immigrant—that is, it consists of people who intend to return to their native countries, or of Americans returning from Europe. In this way it is seen that our immigration is self-limited to less than a million a year, barring what comes in over the Mexican and Canadian borders. Of course, inasmuch as the carrying of immigrant passengers is now a highly remunerative business, it is probable that more ships will be built and put into the business, but the increase in the immigrant stream, which will result from this, will be slow.

Pick the Best

The situation, therefore, as Mr. Wallis sees it, is that out of ten million aliens who want to come to the United States in a given year, only one million can come by reason of the limitations of the carriers. He argues that our manifest duty is to choose this million with the utmost care—to see that the 10 per cent of the proffered population which we take in is the best 10 per cent and not the worst or middling. He points out that a considerable part of the immigration now coming in consists of large, strong, healthy people with enough money to take care of them for some time. Others are sickly, underfed paupers. He argues that legislation should be drafted which will insure that this large, healthy, thrifty type get in and that the sickly paupers be kept out. Since we cannot take them all anyway, why not take the best 10 per cent and not suggest the nature of the regulations by which this selective process might be accomplished, he puts that up to Congress. He does suggest, however, that present laws are inadequate, especially the literacy test. He points out that a man may be able to read 40 words and yet be a very poor specimen of the human race.

Choose in Europe

Mr. Wallis further believes that this selective process should begin on the other side—that it is foolish and cruel to let the immigrant come to this country and then send him back. He believes that an arrangement for such selection on the other side could be made through diplomatic channels. Some of the senators brought out the fact that an attempt had once before been made to effect such an arrangement diplomatically, and that all the nations but Italy and China had objected. No reason in law or common sense was offered, however, why we should not be able to receive immigration on our own terms or reject it altogether.

Mr. Wallis further believes that to make any regulation of immigration effective the inspectors must be high grade men. He points out that such men cannot be obtained at the salaries now paid which range from $1,400 to $2,400 a year. He points out that these inspectors practically decide human destinies and that men of education and intelligence are required.

Lastly, Mr. Wallis believes that intelligent immigration legislation should provide some machinery by which the immigrant is aided to find a job. A competent Government employment agency in connection with the immigration offices at each port of entry, which simply received applications for laborers, and listed opportunities generally, could do a great deal both for the immigrant and for the country to which he comes.

A Milk Merger and Its Consequences.

Editor Post-Crescent—Suppose all the milk dealers of Appleton would combine, and effect a milk merger, would it be beneficial to the community and in what respect? Economists tell us that large sales and small profits pay better than small sales and large profits. Now let us assume there are probably 20 milk dealers supplying the city of Appleton, all covering to a great extent the same territory—one following the other delivering a quart or a pint to every fifth or sixth residence along one street, then they take a jump of probably a mile or more and deliver ten or twelve quarts then another jump to do the same and put in from six to eight hours to deliver on an average probably 175 to 200 quarts of milk. Now let us assume the city would enact an ordinance that all milk in the city must be pasteurized and the dealers would effect a merger, bring all the milk to one plant, have it pasteurized and delivered under one head, what would this mean in saving of wages and expenses? It would save $25,000 to $28,000 a year, a saving of practically $1.50 for every man, woman and child in Appleton. Is it worth saving? Besides the community would get safe

$400,000 MEMORIAL FOR RACINE'S WAR HEROES

Racine—One hundred thousand dollars has been appropriated from the Racine county war relief fund for the erection of a memorial building to cost $400,000, and to be dedicated to the men and women of the county who gave up their lives while in the service of their country during the late war.

The appropriation of $100,000 is made on provision that the common council adopt an ordinance which provides that $100,000 be raised by general taxation and that $100,000 be raised by general subscription. It is declared that $200,000 will be raised by general subscription.

The committee in charge of the proposed memorial building has one year in which to obtain appropriation from the city and public. It is planned to wage a campaign for public subscription and have the common council appropriate $100,000 in order that work on the memorial building may begin by June 1.

SEWER CLEANING ENGINE HAS PAID FOR ITSELF

The turbin sewer cleaning machine purchased by the city a year ago nearly paid for itself in opening up the sewer on Second street between Bounds and Douglas streets. THE BOOK OF DEBORAH

I Wait in the Midst of Historic Surroundings for News About Ann

My duties as telephone operator were strenuous that night. Reports came from many towns, they were identical—no trace of young Mrs. Lorimer anywhere.

Once as I talked at the phone, I half-dreamed that I heard the patter of bare feet in the big hall. It was a bit uncanny, but I am neither superstitious nor fearless. As soon as I could, I hung up the receiver, went to the door of the office, and surveyed the apartment before me.

From ceiling beams to oaken floor planks, the room was medieval, artistic, magnificent. The entire Lorimer mansion had been constructed about it. The paneled walls of carved oak were never lovelier than in the soft glow of the shaded electric bulbs. Hand-wrought lamps, ancient works of art, stood at the corners of the huge settee.

"All right, dear?" came over the wire in Bob's voice. "All right, still," I echoed. We hadn't "made up," nevertheless the form of my husband's speech brought me a little of the comfort that I needed.

"The best news, dear! There's absolutely nothing to be found in the park! Morrison says that the poor child probably hid the things there and put on another disguise. Run upstairs and tell father and mother."

I guess I'm half asleep myself," said myself to myself, when I came back to the big hall. "My lovely pet pillow has certainly moved three feet from the spot where I left it. But I suppose I only half know anything tonight!"

Bob and Morrison, coming in from the search, sat on the big settee, had coffee and sandwiches and discussed the case. Then they put a detective in charge of the phone. Bob sent me

It occurred to me that the divan was huge enough to have made a comfortable bed for at least four retainers in days of old. I pictured them watching the night away, watching perhaps, to proclaim to the vassals the birth of an heir to their feudal lord, watching for the return of victors in some petty war; watching a blar with torches flickering at each end; and I could see the armored gentlemen stretch out and doze off, by turns on what was now a famous Lorimer possession.

My imagination is often weirdly tricky. I shrugged my shoulder as if the rectory would help me throw off the charm of ancient days. Then I picked up the sofa pillows of antique brocade and threw them back upon the couch.

The sharp jangle of the phone called me back to modern life, and modern woes, and my particular part in them.

The duties of the next morning kept us apart and prevented the exchange of the tenderness I needed, the tenderness I craved, in wisely fashion, even if I felt it to be half false.

"Maybe," "We'll just change it to 'Woman, the Entertainer.' It's the same thing," said my cynical sister-in-law. "Find your dancer!" So Chrys quieted the protesting feminists.

"The Lobster Plan." "And now," said the big lobster, when Nancy and Nick had eaten their lunch in the under-sea palace of the Bohadit Inn, "won't you tell me your story? I've got a few minutes to spare."

So the twins told about the r. teav. cis, how they were on an errand to rescue the toys Sniteher Snatch had stolen from Santa Claus at the North Pole, and how the wicked Inn was doing all he could to prevent them from continuing their journey.

"That's too bad," said the lobster. "I'm no friend of the Inn's, myself, although I am cooking for him. He says that if I don't do it, he'll cause a volcano to boil the ocean and that means the end of me. I can't stand hot water. So I just say, 'Heil-ho!' and keep on. Let's see! Where did you say that you left your box with?"

"Outside the wall, under a big cockle-shell," said Nancy. "We could, Special Sale 27c yard. The Fair."

WANTS LICENSE TO CURB WILD DRIVERS

Superior Senator Proposes Driver's License Which Can Be Revoked.

(Special to Post-Crescent)
Madison, Wis.—Senator Ray J. Nye, Superior, is having a bill prepared requiring every person driving any motor vehicle to secure a license which may be revoked for reckless driving, etc. Only a nominal fee would be charged, probably $2 for chauffeurs, $1 for the owner of a car and 50 cents to $1 for each driver.

Such a measure, it is believed, will receive general support in the legislature and will, it is claimed, be the greatest possible boon to the general safety campaign that is being waged over the country. It is proposed to provide that the first conviction of violating any law in the handling of a motor vehicle would suspend the license for a period of probably one month, while a second offense would suspend the license for the period for which it is granted.

It is likely that the license fees received may be returned to the counties to be used in beautifying the highways.

MAY ADD BIG SUM TO SOLDIERS' BONUS

Want to Include Many More Men Under Provisions of Badger Law.

(Special to Post-Crescent)
Madison, Wis.—The senate committee on education and public welfare will present a substitute amendment to Senator Czerwinski's bill relating to the soldier educational bonus. The bill as introduced provides that any soldier who had attended any institution of learning could receive the bonus of $30 per month for four years providing he was enrolled as a student when he entered the service. The substitute amendment will limit the period of the academic year unless the soldier has enrolled since leaving the service.

Although neither supporting nor opposing the bill introduced by Senator Czerwinski, providing that any resident of Wisconsin was entitled to the $10 per month for each month in service under the soldier bonus law, no matter where he registers or enrolls, Adjutant General O'Connell, highway, when asked for an opinion, stated that the Service Recognition Board now has over 2,000 applications for the bonus and that if the bill passed probably as many more applications would be filed. He said the average amount paid out so far under the bonus law was $150 to each soldier, which would mean an additional $600,000 or more.

CRUSADER THROWS HIS STAR IN LAKE

Kenosha Booze Sleuth Disgusted Because of Lack of Support.

Kenosha—"I'm through," declared Constable John Scholey, the crusader of Kenosha county, Wednesday morning, as he announced that he intended to retire from his recent practice of trying to put the fear of the law into the violators of the prohibition and gambling laws in Kenosha county.

Scholey is both a constable and a state prohibition enforcement officer, and has been staging a one man war against violators in Kenosha county. "I am sending my state deputy star in to Madison," he declared, "and I'm going to throw my constable star in the lake and call it off. There isn't any use."

"No one is willing to support my work and I'm tired of receiving nothing but adverse criticism. I do not care about being unpaid for my services, for I did not expect to receive much, but this appears to be a thankless task in Kenosha county, and I'm through."

Failure to secure co-operation from officials here, together with an indifference regarding who would pay the expenses for his raids, are said to be the reasons for his action. Scholey declares he is still willing to help officials if he is called into service, but that he will no longer volunteer to rescue Kenosha county "from the mire of law violation."

"I have taken several bottles of Pe-ru-na and it is a great benefit. I had pains in my stomach and bowels, but by the use of Pe-ru-na and Aspirin, I am well and strong again. I always keep a few bottles in the house." Mrs. D. M. S. Day, Nichols, Iowa.

Mrs. Gray's experience is just more evidence that Pe-ru-na is quite as good a remedy for catarrh of the stomach, bowels or other organs as it is for colds, croup and nasal catarrh. Pe-ru-na is a wonderfully fine medicine to have in the house for everyday use.

SALESMEN RENDER DISTINCT SERVICE TO WORLD'S WORK

Nature Has Made It Necessary
for Man to Work to Earn His Living.

Members of the salesmanship class of the vocational school were made to realize that they were rendering a distinct service to the world's work by Dr. D. O. Kinsman in an informal talk in the auditorium of the vocational school building Thursday evening. They were also told that the world would never be able to get along without merchants whose duty it is to educate a community as well as to bring goods to it.

"Much of the criticism of merchants is uncalled for," said the speaker, "for the reason that their profits during the war are offset by their losses in the present drop in prices. No one realizes unless in business that a tremendous risk the merchant runs and a profit of 33 1/3 percent is not considered exorbitant when you take into consideration the goods that do not sell."

"Now, in thinking over this problem that you people are facing every day, I think sometimes it is well to stand aside, as it were, and look at the problems, look at this great economic movement of which you are an active part and see the position you occupy in the big world of business."

"Now, it is an interesting fact that the Creator saw fit to put us as a people into the world almost without limit of number and variety. There are thousands of people today running headlong in order to satisfy their wants either now or sometime in the future."

Must Be Made Up
"Another interesting thing is that the Creator saw fit to distribute without limit those things which may satisfy our wants, and so we see raw material, the natural resources of the world. The great business and economic problem is to reach out into that environment and get those things which satisfy those wants."

"Just as soon as he looks for them a person discovers that the Creator did not see fit to furnish the goods in such form that he can consume them directly. Have you ever thought of the remarkably few things that the Creator has supplied that you can consume without change? You can count them almost on the fingers of one hand. You may think of fruits that drop from the trees, and also of roots that the savage found and ate. If he found himself in particular environments he could catch snails and clams and a few other things. That was essential for the earliest man otherwise he would have died and we would have had no races."

"So man was early discovered that it was a good thing for him to work. Do you realize how many of us are saved through labor? It is the fellow that has leisure that is always running into the cop's hands. So it is work that saves us from a lot of trouble. The great task of man is to satisfy his wants and so tonight we shall think in terms of physical wants, bodily wants that keep us alive and in the homes in which we live."

"Now, it seems it was the plan to make us all work, but somehow it seems to be born in all of us to be lazy. No body likes to work. This has resulted in some of the most ingenious devices. The white race had to work on raw material in order to satisfy its wants. Man in the early times went out and by means of warfare gained that which others had produced. Then he conceived the more ingenious method of not only keeping the things captured but of enslaving some of the people."

"As civilization advanced our tremendous genius came into play and we enslaved nature and abolished slavery. We used natural forces such as water and wind and 150 years ago Watt discovered steam. So the factory came on to help us out and the gasoline engine and electricity. If a man can find a device to lessen his labor you may understand that sooner or later he will use that device."

Dr. Kinsman then followed the method of production, manufacturing, transportation and marketing down to the present day and emphasized the important part which the retailer takes in the distribution of goods. He also called attention to division of labor which made its appearance as civilization advanced. At first there was no medium of exchange and people traded their goods until money made its appearance.

Duty Of Parents To Visit Their Children In School

Townpeople Urged to Find Out for Themselves What the Schools Are Doing.

Picture, gentle reader, the days when you were a child. See again that Friday afternoon when a spelling bee was to be held at the school and several visitors would be present. Do you remember that little jump in your heart when you saw your parents seated in the visitors' row? You were glad then, that you had studied your lesson.

Live again that Friday afternoon, when one after another you passed over your unfortunate opponents toward the head of the class. When you won the "bee" and stood up to receive the prize, you were too modest to show that you noticed how your parents were beaming upon the rest of the visitors and the school in general. But you noticed, nevertheless, and you resolved then and there that it was worth the effort and lots more. After that, remember how hard you studied and what good grades you received? People used to point you out and say:

"There goes Harold So-and-so. He's awfully bright in school. They say he is the best pupil in town. I'll bet we'll hear from him when he grows up."

Of course, you didn't hear that, but you knew what they said. Remember how you laughed and sort of pushed out your chest?

"Shucks," you thought, "it's all on account of my ma and pa visiting school that day. If they think school is worth visiting" once in a while, it must be a good thing, and I'll make the best of it."

How About Your Children?
You are grown up now and have your own children going to school. One of them is not doing well in his school work and you reprimand him and begin telling him about the wonderful things you accomplished in school when you were his age.

But do you visit the school and talk things over with the child's teachers? Do you attempt to find out whether your son is accurately accounting his problems in school? No, you don't. You are too busy making a living for your family. And in making your living you are forgetting that for which you are living—your children. You are getting older, the future holds nothing for you, except a reminder that every passing day brings you closer to your Maker. It is for the children that you are living, the children who, in the future, will step into your place in life.

You are interested in the welfare of your children. You can show your interest by visiting the school during session hours and talking over the problems of your son with his teachers. Reasons why parents should visit school have been outlined by Appleton men and women who are actively engaged in the work.

"There are four reasons why I would like to see more parents visit school," said W. S. Ford, director of Appleton Vocational school. "As it is, we have plenty of visitors, but few parents unless they come for a public exhibition. They should come when the school is running and see how it is conducted."

Methods Have Changed
"First—it is the parents' business to visit school. They are putting their money into it and it is their duty to check up once in a while."

"Second—They should keep up with the changes in methods of education. The school of today is not like it was in their time. It is constantly changing, and yet when they think of school they think of it in terms of the school they attended."

"Third—Visitation by parents enlarges the importance of the school in the eyes of the child. It shows the pupil that his parents have an interest in his work."

"Fourth—it is an encouragement to the teachers. They can do much more with a pupil whose problems they know. Here is a child who is not particularly bright and yet, along with a number of other students who have no knowledge of the problems which confront that one pupil, after we have had a good talk with the teachers, they can do much more with a pupil whose problems they know. pupil's parent we have an insight on the basic cause of all his problems. Then the teachers are able to take such a case and work it out with results. The visitation of the parents lends a personal aspect to the work of teaching."

"It is essential to efficiency for the parent to visit school," said Leo C. Itasey, principal of the high school. It is better for all concerned when the parent can come and see and hear how his child is doing his work. It helps us as teachers to get along with a backward student. home and help the student accordingly. When we know the parents we can give help that otherwise could not be given.

"Not more than five or six parents have visited this school the last semester. But we are working out a plan which has been tried in other schools, by which we hope to bring more parents in touch with the school. We plan to have a certain afternoon or evening set aside for visiting purposes. During that time there will be conferences and the like between the parents and the teachers. It is not on the order of the Parent-Teachers association, for there will be no speeches or officers. That plan will be tried out next fall."

The board chose Prof. Earl Emme of Lawrence college to direct the program. The board consists of Prof. E. Emme, chairman; J. G. Rosebush, Dr. D. O. Kinsman, Dr. Samuel Plantz, Lee C. Itasey, Mrs. Mary Wells, Fred Bushey and M. H. Small.

CIVIL WAR VETERAN TELLS EXPERIENCE

Sergt. Frank Fitzgerald
Says He Wants All His Old Comrades to Know
About Tanlac.

"I am now seventy-seven years old, but feel fully fifteen years younger than I did six months ago when I began taking Tanlac," is the statement made recently by Sergt. Frank Fitzgerald, a Civil War veteran residing at the National Soldiers' Home, Milwaukee, Wis.

"Yes, I feel like a new man and would not be without Tanlac for any amount of money. A number of my comrades are using it now and getting most gratifying results. It is certainly fine for a man getting along in years, as has been shown in my case, or it has been a godsend to me."

"For many years I was badly troubled with rheumatism, constipation and a bad stomach. My back over my kidneys gave me much trouble and often I'd be so stiff and sore I had difficulty in getting up and down.

"My appetite was next to nothing, and what I did eat I didn't relish. I got so nervous I had trouble in getting to sleep at night and would get up in the morning more tired than when I went to bed."

"Since I began taking Tanlac all my aches and pains have left me and I feel almost like a boy again. I never dreamed there could be any medicine that would help a man of my years and troubled as I was like Tanlac has helped me."

"I want all the old 'vets' of the country to know what a fine medicine Tanlac is, and am glad to give this testimonial."

Tanlac is sold in Appleton by John E. Voigt; F. O. Brown, Shiocton; Dr. J. M. Sattler, Bear Creek; H. E. Abend, Dale; R. E. Lowell, Little Chute.

APPLETON TO CONSIDER STATE COMMERCIAL BODY

What Appleton Chamber of Commerce thinks of the proposed state chamber of commerce will be ascertained at the meeting of the board of directors Thursday noon in the French room of the Sherman house.

A letter has been received from Edward R. Smith, Oshkosh, president of the Wisconsin Association of Commercial Secretaries asking that the matter be given consideration. The movement was started after Hugh G. Corbett, managing secretary of the Appleton chamber, filed his report as chairman of the committee investigating this matter.

Reports of standing committees will be heard and other communications considered.

C. & N. W. NOT TO GIVE ADDED MADISON SERVICE

Additional train service from Green Bay to Madison as suggested by Appleton and other Fox River valley commercial organizations will not be granted by the Chicago and North-western railway for some time, according to notice issued by A. W. Bower, Madison, division freight and passenger agent.

Mr. Bower states that railroads are curtailing service owing to business conditions. He said the roads paid out $1.08 for every dollar's worth of revenue received. Such a situation would preclude additional service whether the demand would warrant addition of trains, he stated.

TO ATTEND STATE FARM CONFERENCE

Outagamie County Will Be Represented by Several at Madison Gathering.

Possibly eight or ten farmers from this county will attend all sessions of the get-together market conference February 1 to 10 at Madison. With railroad rates reduced to one-half, it is expected that many others will attend that portion of the meetings in which they are particularly interested.

Gov. John J. Blaine has sent an appeal to farmers' organizations across the state urging a large attendance. Almost every phase of Wisconsin farming will be considered, including an exhaustive study of the marketing conditions which caused such a marked depression this fall.

Representatives of Equity, Farm Bureau, Grange and other agricultural organizations will hold conferences on the opening day, Tuesday, February 1. Among topics to be considered on succeeding days are marketing from the producer's and consumer's standpoint, finance, transportation, county life, live stock problems and others.

BANK PLANS DIRECTORY OF COUNTY HOLSTEINS

Holstein herds in Outagamie county will be widely advertised through a directory that is to be prepared by Paul O. Nyhus, farm agent of the First National bank. Information blanks have been mailed to every Holstein dairyman owning one cow or more.

The directory will contain the name and address of the owner, the name of his farm, number of pure bred females in the herd, name of herd sire, production record of the herd sire, dam, and other facts.

Farmers and outside buyers who want to know where to buy some of the famous Holsteins that are found all through this county will have this information at hand in the directory. It also becomes a list of the farmers who have joined the march of dairy progress and may possibly stimulate others to enter the Holstein producing field.

BLOODED HOLSTEINS ON

Two of Fond du Lac county's prize Holstein herds are to be dispersed at a public sale at Fond du Lac March 15 and 16, according to word received by local dairyman. One is owned by Walter W. APPLETON C. OF C. OPPOSES CHANGES IN TAXATION LAWS

Directors of Chamber Indorse J. J. Esch for Commerce Commissioner.

Appleton Chamber of Commerce has cast a negative vote on all changes in taxation laws as proposed in referendum No. 34 of the Chamber of Commerce of the State of Wisconsin.

The directors decided that the returned ballots reflected the general sentiment and therefore decided to go on record unanimously as opposing all of the 15 changes, including abolition of excess profits taxes, imposing a general sales tax and altering other methods in federal taxation matters.

The individual ballot was almost two to one opposed in most cases. No inclination was shown by chamber officials to take part in discussion of the proposed great lakes to ocean waterway. An invitation to a conference at Madison Monday, February 1, was read but the directors voted to table the matter. Appleton has taken little part in the agitation since it started, although Green Bay, Oshkosh, Fond du Lac and other cities appear deeply interested because of what it means to the commercial interests of the middle west.

Fred E. Wetzel, an officer of the Toy Company of America, attended the meeting and told interestingly of what the plant had accomplished and what its plans were. He described the patented toys manufactured, including rockers, planes, instructive blackboards and many others. He stated that inquiries and orders were being received in satisfactory numbers. Mr. Wetzel got invited the directors to visit the plant to see what has been accomplished.

City Planning Speaker
John L. Hettlinger, chairman of the community welfare committee, presented his report. Referring to city planning, he said his committee had expected to secure a speaker on the subject long before this, but all the experts were in the east and could not be engaged until they made a trip west because the expense would be too great.

Inquiries concerning pasteurizing or tuberculin testing of milk had been given attention, the report stated, and that the matter was under investigation. Possibility of securing more parks in suitable locations was also being studied and would come up later. Daniel P. Steinberg, chairman of the publicity and convention committee, announced that a small pamphlet describing Appleton had been prepared and was ready for the printer. It is to contain 16 pages of reading matter and pictures. It is to be a home product, printed in Appleton on paper manufactured here.

A letter was presented from Menasha Chamber of Commerce asking cooperation in securing better train service over the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railway so as to connect with train No. 10 on the main line.

Each is Indorsed
LaCrosse chamber requested indorsement for Congressman John J. Esch as interstate commerce commissioner. The directors discussed the matter and voted to urge appointment to this post.

A letter from the Outagamie, Red Cross chapter concerning families suffering from unemployment was read. President William C. Wing was instructed to see what could be done. The chapter was aiming to secure work for the unemployed rather than to secure financial aid, the letter stated.

No consideration was given the state chamber of commerce matter because of the lack of time. The chamber's attitude toward establishment of such a body will be decided at the next meeting.

NAME UP JOHN AS CHURCH DEPUTY

Fond du Lac Episcopal Diocese Raises Assessments—Change Government.

The Rev. Doane Upjohn, rector of Grace Episcopal church, was re-elected to one of the standing committees at the meeting of the Episcopal Diocesan council of the Fond du Lac district at Fond du Lac early in the week. He was also named alternate deputy of the clergy group.

A plea for a new school at Oneida reservation to take the place of one destroyed by fire was made by the Rev. Father Watson. He reported that the mission is building a new church, it is conducting a school that 42 pupils are attending, but a new building and more teachers will be needed soon. Formal request was also made to refurbish the hospital at Oneida and place it in use again because of the many sick persons at the reservation.

The council voted to increase the assessment on average incomes from six to seven and a half per cent in order to raise the necessary budget. This year's total assessment is $5,140.

Finding that the present governing system by committees, boards and commissions is inefficient and unbusinesslike because none is related to one another, the council recommended a new plan. It provided for an executive board of 16 members, eight laymen, seven clergy and the bishop. Bishop R. H. Weller would be made ex-officio president. The new plan will come up for adoption at next year's council meeting.

DEMAND $100 AN ACRE FOR SUGAR BEET CROP

Sugar beet growers of the county are watching with interest efforts of Rock County farmers to organize for the purpose of demanding better prices for the coming summer's crop.

All prices for sugar beets are set by the factory in advance of planting and practically all the beets grown are contracted before planting. Farmers claim that these prices are usually too low and want a changed arrangement.

Rock county growers believe they should be paid $100 an acre. They refuse to raise beets at a loss and intimate that they will turn their heads and hands to something else if they see no change for profit.

HOLSTEIN MEN FORM STATE SELLING BODY

Sale of Holstein cattle in Wisconsin will be regulated by the Wisconsin Federation of Sales Managers, recently organized at Watertown. Most of the Holstein counties are represented, but Outagamie has not named a member.

The federation proposes to establish standards of dealing and treatment which sale companies must live up to if they desire to have the organization's approval. These standards include guaranteed pedigree and breeding qualities, tuberculin tests, retest privileges and such other requirements as will enable the purchaser to obtain a square deal.

Play To a Tie
An attempt to play off the finals in the chess tournament at the Y. M. C. A. resulted in a "stalemate". Burton Manser and Carl Thompson were the players. Two games had been played, and a victory had gone to each man. The third and deciding game was declared a "stalemate" after two hours of play. Neither of the players could move his chessmen.

REALTY GATHERING WILL TAX HOTEL FACILITIES

Appleton will entertain an immense throng when delegates flock here for the state convention of the Wisconsin Real Estate Brokers' association February 16 and 17. So many reservations are being received by H. G. Thomas, chairman of the reservations committee, that the hotel facilities here and at Neenah and Menasha will be taxed beyond their capacity.

"We may have to seek quarters for some of our delegates in private homes," state Daniel P. Steinberg, convention chairman and secretary of the state board. "Indications are the attendance will be beyond our expectations. One or two families already have offered the use of spare rooms during the convention period."

WOODCRAFT LEAGUE HAS ROOM FOR MORE GIRLS

Have you cut your fingers? Then look out for the Woodcraft League. You have at once become an object of interest in the eyes of the members—a victim in short. For you may become a subject upon which they can test their newly learned knowledge of first aid. Perhaps here is an opportunity for them to try their "bandage."

The girls are very much interested in their new study and are consequently eager to see how their theories work out in practice. There is still room for several girls in the organization. The club takes up nature study and various forms of outdoor craft. Hiking is one of the favorite past times of the girls. They meet regularly at 7:30 Thursday evenings at Appleton Woman's club.

First Ward Rink

The ice rink in the first ward is being flooded and will be ready for use Friday, providing the mercury does not climb much higher.

TWO SUNDAY CLUBS WILL BE ORGANIZED

Organization Will Be Completed Immediately After Registration.

Two novel clubs for girls are to be formed this week at the Appleton Woman's club; a Sunday afternoon club, the nature of which will be determined by the wishes of the members; and a Sunday afternoon hiking club. There are great possibilities in these two clubs.

There is no limit to membership in either. The group will meet as soon as the registration is over and decide what it wishes to take up. Perhaps it will wish to read or make a study of some form of literature, or perhaps take up some branch of music. The club rooms are always available from three until six o'clock Sunday afternoons and for Sunday evenings.

There is a great deal of pleasure to be derived from hiking. The girls might take little trips to the lake or woods where they will be able to discover the very earliest spring flowers, and observe the birds which are the first to return. It is very exhilarating to take a brisk hike for six or eight miles in the open and return about 5:30 o'clock to a hot lunch in a cozy room such as the Appleton Woman's club provides.

Meet in Third Game

Mulford's Clothing basketball team of Kaukauna will meet the Appleton Vocational school team Friday night at Y. M. C. A. gymnasium. Each team has won a victory and the third game should decide which is the better team.

FIND IT PROFITABLE TO BUY OF LOCAL FIRMS

The bargain glamor of the mail order house catalog has worn off to some extent in this country. Appleton stores have so effectively reduced prices that those who send in mail orders find they have paid a higher price than they would have expended here at home. Sometimes the mail order price is lower when the order goes in, but by the time delivery is made, local prices have been reduced.

More than one person who has sent his money to Chicago concerning instead of placing it at home has said "never again," when he found that nothing was gained by the time the freight was paid.

Pasteurization as Health Officials See It

Dr. Edward V. McCollum, Department of Chemical Hygiene, Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, who was one of the first to prove, by feeding experiments, that milk contained vitamins:

"Pasteurized milk should be safeguarded by prompt refrigeration in the home, in order to prevent staleness which comes with the development of bad flavor. In many cases the bad flavor of milk is due to failure of the housewife to remove the bottles from the doorstep and place them promptly in a cold refrigerator. An hour or two on the door step will frequently cause the development of bad flavor in a bottle of milk.

"No infant will ever develop scurvy if given orange juice or tomato juice, and the feeding of raw milk is by no means a certain safeguard against the development of rickets; rickets, as is generally known, being a disease in which there is faulty bone growth. Bad hygienic conditions, lack of exercise, light, etc., together with digestive disturbances brought on by food which is in bad bacterial condition, are doubtless the main factors involved in the development of rickets.

"I feel confident that those who would now compel the return to the city-wide sale of raw milk are espousing the cause of a policy which would do a great deal of damage."

Lester A. Round, pathologist, Rhode Island State Board of Health, says: "I, personally, consider certified and pasteurized milk to be the only kinds of milk that can be considered safe."

Dr. L. E. La Petra, prominent children's specialist, New York City; author of several physician's reference books on Infant Feeding:

"Unless the milk is produced under the very best conditions of medical supervision, it is unwise to have it distributed to the public, especially in summer time, without pasteurization. The advantages of pasteurization for the elimination of dangerous germs in milk far outweigh any disadvantages in the danger of producing nutritional disorders."

Dr. M. J. Rosenau, Dean of Medical School, Harvard University, states: "I regard pasteurization as a sanitary safeguard, and that the benefits far outweigh the few minor objections that have been brought up against it."

Dr. Louis Harris, Director, Bureau of Preventable Disease, New York City Health Department:

"We are facing a condition and not a theory. It is a fact that certified milk cannot be obtained for all the children of any moderate sized community. Further, we know from sad experience attested to by statistics gathered in every city, that the infant mortality rate has been enormous wherever raw milk as commonly sold has been used. We have come to know that pasteurization is a life-saving measure in so far as concerns infants and children who depend upon milk as their chief food. Everywhere the introduction of pasteurized milk has been hailed as a triumph. From a report of Newport Commission on Milk Supply.

of pasteurization has resulted in an almost immediate and most striking reduction in the infant mortality rate."

H. W. Whittaker, Director Division of Sanitation, Minnesota State Board of Health:

"We believe that the regulations established by your Board of Health calling for the sale of but two grades of milk, namely certified and pasteurized, are correct. The Minnesota State Board of Health, in its regulations, now recognizes only these two grades of milk. There are certain cities in the state which permit, by local ordinances, the sale of raw milk which is not of the grade of certified milk, and which do not require the milk to be pasteurized. This is a condition which it will be necessary to tolerate for a short time, or until improvement can be brought about, but we believe that the two grades mentioned above are the only grades that should be permitted to be sold in municipalities where the proper mechanism is established for the control of their production and sale."

Dr. E. C. Sherman, Acting Executive Officer, Chemistry Department, Columbia University:

"Regarding the advantage of pasteurization, I share the view which I think is now prevalent that, as a safeguard against the possibility of milk-borne infection, it is better that all milk below the grade of certified should be pasteurized."

Dr. D. B. Armstrong, Executive Officer, Health Demonstration of the National Tuberculosis Association, Framingham, Massachusetts:

"I think it is safe to say that the dietary experts are convinced that pasteurization bears no harmful relation to infant feeding. It was once thought to be instrumental in the development of rickets. We now are convinced that rickets may develop in children while entirely breast fed, and that the disease is the result of some essential food element deficiency. On the other hand, pasteurization properly carried out does not injure these growth-producing elements or vitamins in milk. Neither does it deleteriously affect the ash content or food value of milk."

Dr. Julius Levy, Director Child Hygiene Division, City of Newark, N. J.

"My personal experience extending over a period of 15 years has given me no reason for discontinuing the use of pasteurized milk, as during this period I have not had a single case of scurvy. While there was a general opinion that scurvy and rickets frequently followed the use of pasteurized milk, it has been found that if the milk is not held at a temperature over 145 degrees for more than 30 min., there is very little likelihood that scurvy will develop. It has also been proved that this slight chance can be guarded against by the giving of orange juice at the fourth or fifth month.

"Against this slight objection to pasteurized milk must be set the fact that it is the only method, when properly carried out that will protect the children or adults from the pathogenic bacteria that may be found in milk and may produce bovine tuberculosis, diphtheria, scarlet fever, septic sore throat and forms of intestinal disturbances. Not even certified milk is as dependable."

Dr. Herman Briggs, Commissioner of Health, State of New York:

"Replying to your letter, I would say, in my judgment pasteurized milk is the only safe milk. Even certified milk is more likely to convey disease than a properly pasteurized milk.

"I cannot imagine any progressive municipality at this time, which was properly informed as to the facts, would revert to the use of unpasteurized milk when once it has adopted the other."

John B. Murlin, Department of Physiology, University of Rochester, N. Y.:

"During the past year the Department of Vital Economics has been conducting a milk station in an Italian district in this city and has been dispensing at cost, in co-operation with the Rotary Club of the city, pasteurized milk for the use of children under seven years of age. Altogether some 300 children have been benefited by the station and many of them have shown remarkable gains in body weight and stature. For example, we had at the beginning of the year 54 children who were five pounds or more under weight. At the end of the year only 39 were under weight to this extent. There are many individual cases of children who have made not only their expected growth for age, but have recovered anywhere from two to six pounds under weight. Nothing but pasteurized milk was dispensed. Careful record of the amount of milk taken by each child has been kept and it is found that this varies from 8 to 24 ounces daily.

"We have also many instances of children who were not making the normal growth until milk was started, after which growth was obviously stimulated. If the pasteurization of milk destroyed any of the essential vitamins, these results could not have been obtained."

Dr. Francis E. Fronczak, Health Commissioner, Department of Health, Buffalo, N. Y.:

"We regard the pasteurization of milk so important to safeguard the public health that an ordinance was adopted to make such a procedure mandatory.

"While certified milk is permitted to be sold raw, nevertheless, from our experience, we are satisfied that not even this quality may be considered free, at all times, from dangerous contamination.

"This city, several years ago, experienced several epidemics of scarlet fever, diphtheria and typhoid fever, traced to raw milk supplies. Since pasteurization of milk supplies in this city has been generally practiced, no such outbreaks of disease traceable to the milk supply have occurred."—The Milk Magazine.

TYING TY COBB WILL KEEP OPPONENTS BUSY

Tying Ty Cobb has a new meaning now. It once meant tying him at the plate and on the base.

This year it will mean tying a whole ball club that is being directed by the quickest thinking brain on spikes.

But Ty was never tied as a player. Tying him as a skipper will be a long job.

He takes the Bengal Cats in hand at a time when their claws are dulled. Already he's started sharpening him.

The best and only way to get a loser out of a team is to apply to him a constructive but constructive.

Reform Schedule

So Ty's brain that has out-smarted players for 14 years will try to out-smart rival managers too.

The fast Georgian's program will be:

Spring training to benefit players—not pocketbooks.

More rope for base runners.

Win today's game today!

Less attention to cards and dice.

Thinking baseball off the diamond as well as on it.

Fighting till the last man is out.

Speed—always more speed.

Cobb's rebuilding can't be accomplished in a day or a season. But, guided from the way Detroit fans supported a loser, they'll back up his leader.

Loves Limelight

Of the Georgian's temperament—the years have tamed his hot head but not his cool brain.

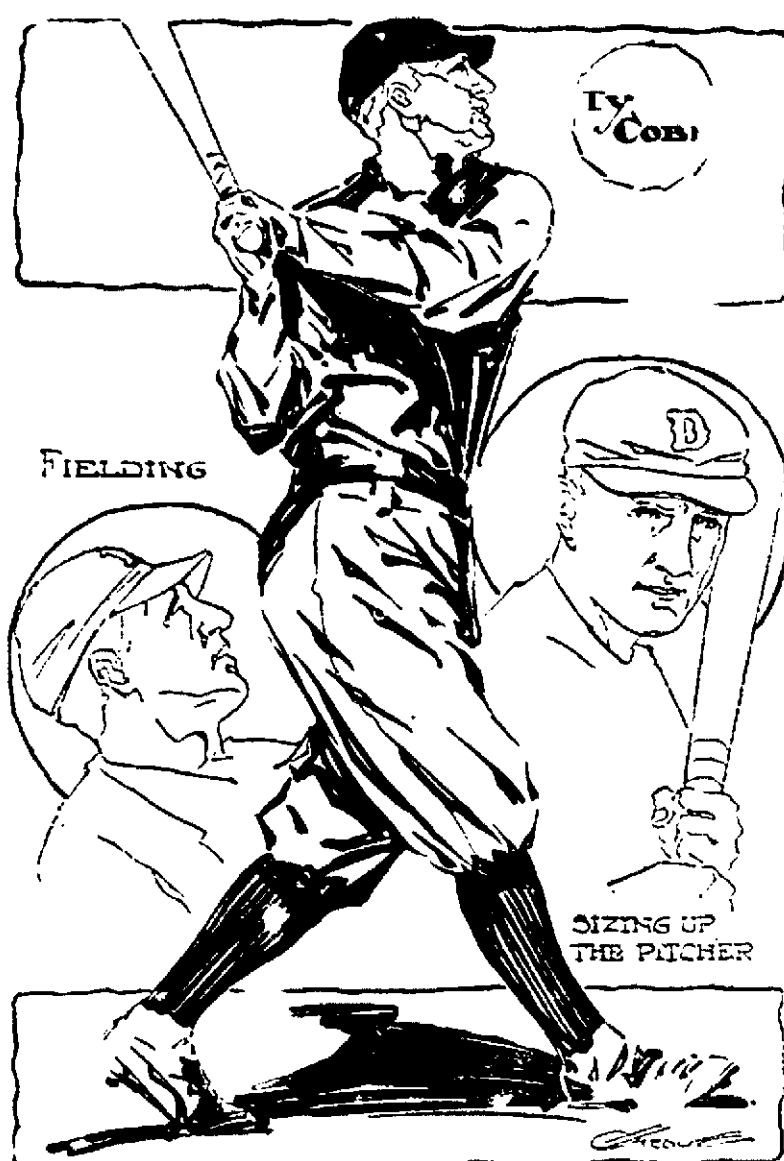

Ty likes limelight. He loves the color of the spotlight as much as ever. All prima donnas do.

Last year when he wasn't leading, due to injury, he was the picture of gloom. But he fought his way back to his stride. At the end of the season Cobb was going like a house afire.

Hughie's Tribute

When Hughie Jennings quit the Bengal bird house he paid Ty this tribute:

"Cobb's temperament has stood in his way at times. But on the field he thought so much faster than other players much of his real greatness wasn't appreciated.

"No man realizes the value of team play better than Ty. He never once refused to take a signal from me.

"I don't take credit for developing him. Cobb has been a law unto him self. I told him to go ahead and play his own game back in 1907."

HILL SIGNS UP TO BOX BUD GORMAN

Appleton Wrestler Will Try His Luck With Gloves in Green Bay Ring.

George Hill, Appleton's wrestling champion, is going to try his luck with the padded gloves. Yesterday he signed articles agreeing to box Bud Gorman, Kenosha heavyweight, before the Sullivan Post of the American Legion in Green Bay Monday evening, Feb. 1. The fight is to go to eight rounds, barring the landing of a haymaker by one or the other of the scrappers.

Hill's signature to the agreement was secured by Sam Michaels, Green Bay fight impresario, who was in Appleton yesterday. George said he is in fine condition and is ready to take on this Gorman person at any time. He figures the scrap will put him in tip top shape for his wrestling bout here with Young Romanoff Tuesday night, Feb. 2.

Hill is not a stranger to the fight game. While he has not been making a practice of boxing, he has appeared in a number of battles and is said to be quite handy with his fists. Appleton fans remember Bud Gorman as a big, heavy youth who used to live in Neenah. Bud has fought quite a number of fights and is said to be going good now. It is quite probable a large number of Appleton fans will journey to the Bay to see the argument.

Only a few days ago Hill offered to go into the ring with Carl Zoll whom he defeated on the wrestling mat about two weeks ago. Hill was willing to take him on for 50 per cent of the gate receipts, but thus far no fight promoter has been willing to take a chance with that kind of bout.

Hill looks to be in splendid shape and says he never felt better in his life. He is confident of making a good showing with Gorman and is sure bout will not handicap him for the argument with Romanoff the next night.

HORTONVILLE CAGE TEAM IS MAKING FINE SHOWING

Hortonville high school basketball team is making a splendid showing in interscholastic circles this year. The team is made up almost entirely of beginners but it has defeated all its opponents but two—Oshkosh and Neenah—so far this season. Hortonville has been clamoring for a return game with Neenah for some time.

A few days ago Hortonville was charged with a defeat at the hands of Bear Creek but it has since been learned it was the second team which played there. The team was also charged with defeat at Orion when it was the firemen's team which lost the game.

SMALL FLOOR SURE TO HANDICAP CARROLL TEAM

All the Lawrence regulars will be in condition for the basketball game with Carroll college of Waukesha here this evening. The men are said to be in as good condition as at any time during the season.

A victory tonight will inspire the Blue and White men on to a renewed effort to capture the conference title. Beloit and Ripon will be met on the Lawrence floor which is an advantage for the local team which cannot be discounted. The small playing floor in Alexander gymnasium, to which the local team is accustomed, will be a serious handicap for the visitors.

E. E. Lewis of Hortonville caused an incident here Thursday.

15 ROUND DECISION BOUTS FOR BADGERS

Milwaukee Legislator Seeks Change in Present Wisconsin Boxing Law.

By United Press Licensed Wire
Madison—Fifteen round boxing contests to a decision in place of the present ten round no-decision bouts will be asked of the state legislature by Milwaukee sportsmen, according to Assemblyman Frank L. Prescott of Milwaukee, today.

Prescott is preparing to introduce a bill which provides for fifteen round bouts to a decision. He also favors placing boxing instructors in all high schools of the state through funds from the state percentage of light receipts.

"The people of Wisconsin have shown by their support of the sport that they are interested and they should be given their money's worth," said Prescott.

"There is no satisfaction in no-decision bouts."

Prescott favors appointment of two judges by the state boxing commission to pick winners of bouts. Referees would also be licensed by the commission.

The law is patterned after the New York boxing law, Prescott said.

ELKS HOPE TO SEND TEN TEAMS TO STATE TOURNEY

Appleton Elks expect to send at least ten teams to the Elks state bowling tournament in Green Bay from Feb. 19 to March 29. Arrangements now are being made to select the teams. A date for the Appleton men will be announced within the next few days.

It is probable all of the league teams will compete in the tourney. Several of the squads have made excellent marks so far this year and they are hopeful of getting in the money. About $5,000 is to be offered for prizes. Word from Green Bay indicates the tournament will be the largest ever attempted by Elks in this state.

W. H. and J. W. Leaper of Phillips were here on business Thursday.

W. A. Wescott of Cranston was a business visitor here Thursday.

Owing to the fact that this liquor could disappear, as though it had been into a sewer, in so short a time, two views are taken by the prohibition enforcement division here in regard to recent decision of the Supreme Court in the William G. Street case, in which Street was permitted to withdraw his booze from a New York commercial warehouse for personal use.

One view is that the Internal Revenue Bureau should open wide the flood gates and let the booze be withdrawn from the warehouses as quickly as possible. The other opinion is that the bureau should construe the right to withdraw liquor for personal use in cases exactly like the Street case, and draw the lines still tighter around the booze in the bonded warehouses.

The view taken by John Kramer is that the booze in the warehouses should not be turned loose. The ruling is now being prepared. That Kramer's view will prevail is a good bet.

The present supply of liquor will last only two more years at the rate it is being withdrawn under "strict enforcement." When the 18th amendment took effect Jan. 16, 1920, there were 72,000,000 gallons of liquor in force, and in less than a year 22,000,000 gallons have been drawn out for "medical, scientific and sacramental" purposes. Only one distillery is now running.

What It Would Cost
If Uncle Sam would let it be drawn out for beverage purposes, the owners could pay the government $319,733,754 in taxes at the rate of $6.40 a gallon. But if the government refuses to let it be withdrawn for beverage purposes, the government will get $204,000,000 less, or about $100,000,000.

Many of the banks hold large warehouse certificates as collateral for loans. These are probably less than 70,000,000 loaned on these certificates. If they were released the money paid into the banks would relieve the present money stringency a little. But ultimately it would only mean there would be a shifting of money from the hands of those who drink to the hands of those who own or hold the certificates.

Kramer Fights Move to Free Whisky Stocks for Personal Use.

By George B. Waters
(Special to Post-Crescent)

Washington—If all the liquor in bonded warehouses was put on the market, it would last only 36 days if Americans should drink at their old rate. There would be less than a half gallon of booze per person, and in the good old days the people used to drink, in terms of straight whiskey, at the rate of five gallons a year for each man, woman and child in America.

At the present time there is in storage the following liquors:

Whisky $6,444.97
Rum 407.913
Gin 902.512
Brandy 530.296

EARLY BIRD AT BANQUET WILL GET FINE PRIZE

It will be worthwhile for sportsmen who will attend the annual dinner of the Outagamie County Fish and Game Protective association Monday evening, Feb. 7, to get around early. Secretary G. L. Chamberlain has secured a quantity of artificial bait from the South Bend Bait Co., which will be given to the first fifty persons in the banquet hall. The bait is valued at $20 but there is not enough of it to distribute it to all the guests so he has hit on this method for distribution. The hall will be opened at 6:30 and dinner is to be served at 7 o'clock.

BIG ULCER ALL HEALED

"Now I Can Walk," Says Mrs. Southcott of Medina

"Here is another letter that makes me happy," says Peterson, of Buffalo. "One that I would rather have than a thousand dollars."

"Money isn't everything in this world. There is many a poor man who would give all he has on earth to be able to produce a remedy with such mighty healing power as Peterson's Ointment, to sell at all druggists for 25 cents a large box."

Read this letter, written February 14, 1918, by Mrs. Albert Southcott, of Medina, N. Y. It seems like a miracle but it is true, every word of it. I know it because I get similar letters almost every day from people who have used my ointment for old sores, eczema and piles.

Is it any wonder I am happy? Peterson Ointment Co., Inc., Buffalo, N. Y.

CONCRETE ROADS HARD ON MAIL MAN'S PURSE

Concrete roads have their disadvantages in winter when they are not snow covered. A rural mail carrier who travels about 15 miles every day with a horse-drawn rig finds that the animal wears out a set of shoe calks a day. At the present cost of 10 cents apiece for calks he finds it quite expensive to keep his horse sharp shoe.

The calks have a hard steel center surrounded by softer metal. Ordinarily the center would wear down more slowly and thus provide a continuous sharp point, but steady travel on concrete wears the calks down evenly, partially destroying their effectiveness on icy spots.
